

Message from Director of Libraries

Congratulations to the first graduating class of PMU: we are all very proud of your achievement, and we know that you will continue to grow and develop as leaders and as life-long learners.

To all of our students who are still preparing for exams and working on research papers, I would strongly encourage you to take full advantage of the PMU Library's resources. The Library's E-Resources are available to you both on and off campus, to help you complete your assignments, and the Library has space in which you can work and study. Our Librarians are always available to help you with your research--please do not hesitate to contact them.

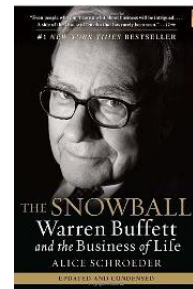

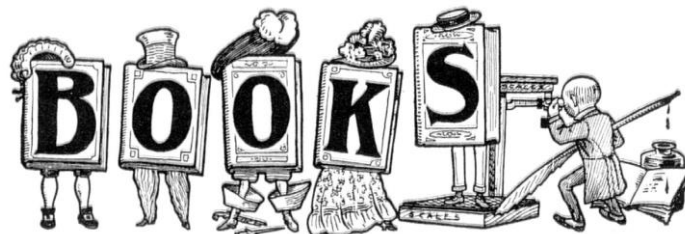

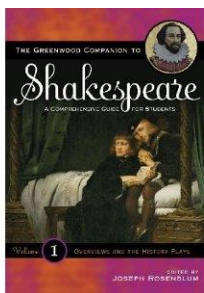

The Library's collection of books continues to grow, and 10,000 new books are being added to our shelves in the course of this year-- nearly 3,000 books have already been added in all subjects, and dozens of new books are being brought-out every single day.

Ultimately, the purpose of both books and education are to expand Life's possibilities: among all of these books and articles, a student might find ideas that could change his life and improve the entire world. The Library is here to support you not only in your immediate studies, but in this fundamental process of discovery--as you grow to become leaders.

NEW ARRIVALS

STOP, LOOK & CHECK-OUT.

LIBRARIANS – World Class Professionals

This will be one of the last articles that I write for the PMU Library Newsletter and by the time you, the PMU Community, read this I will be back home in the United States and working for my new employer.

Libraries are not merely buildings which house collections of research materials in print and digital form, but also the people who work in them and use them. World class libraries are not merely excellent and extensive collections of materials but also the world class professionals who work in them.

Sometimes librarians forget that librarianship is a service profession, especially those of us who concentrate upon the technical services of the library. We tend to think in terms of books, resources, and computer hardware and software, rather than in terms of people, but librarianship is all about the users and the information that we provide to them. We need to continue to strive to provide the best possible resources in the shortest amount of time to anyone who needs them.

In the little more than two years that I have worked in PMU library, I have had the honor and privilege of working some dedicated professionals like the Library Director Dr. Jamil Qureshy, Female Librarian Ms. Elvira Zingapan and Assistant Librarian Mr. Johan Mir. Together we have followed the TIEC guidelines and started a new university library. Although the library is not all that it can become, the foundations have been laid and plans are in place to create a truly outstanding university library.

I urge the PMU Community to take the time to get to know library staff and to work with them to continue to growth the library. And, working with the library staff will enhance your experience of the library, as they are all dedicated to helping the PMU Community make the best use of the library's facilities and resources.

Farewell and best regards,

*-Michael A. Sartori

2nd PMU Library User Survey

From May 29 through June 23, 2010, the PMU Library conducted its 2nd PMU Library User Survey to determine the PMU community's perceptions of the library, its services, its staff, and its facilities.

First of all, the library staff extends their thanks to everyone who participated in the Survey. We very much appreciate the time that respondents took to provide us with their valuable feedback, and we will work to improve our collections, services, and facilities to meet the users' needs and expectations.

We were very pleased with the response rate: a total of 180 respondents participated in the survey, almost 6% of the total PMU school student population.

Secondly, we want the PMU Community to know that the responses you provided are taken very seriously. In addition to compiling your responses to the survey questions, we have also read each and every comment submitted. Overall, we are pleased to report that the majority of participants (77%) Agreed or Strongly Agreed that the Library staff are "—knowledgeable and proficient at finding information." A solid majority (60%) either Agreed or Strongly Agreed that "--the Library's services meet my learning/research needs", with less than 9% Disagreeing. Among students who felt that the Library wasn't meeting their research and study needs, the greatest complaint was the user's desire that we should "—add more books to the Library," and along these lines we have further good news: 10,000 books currently are being added to the collection, and more than 3,000 of these books are already available on the Library's shelves.

From the responses and comments in the completed surveys, we also know that there are a number of people who would appreciate further instruction in the availability and use of the Library's resources, and this is something we hope to address on an on-going basis. The majority of the respondents rated the Library's facilities as being comfortable and conducive to studying; however, we are aware that there are some issues regarding the availability and/or quality of certain types of equipment.

The PMU library staff again extends its thanks to everyone who participated in the 2nd PMU Library User Survey Spring 2010.

Usage statistics of PMU - Library Electronic Resources

The PMU Library provides on and off campus access to electronic resources, which are full-text databases of articles and books. The Library records information on the number of searches and sessions that occur within each database— we have compiled this data from the time period of June 2010 to May 2011, to give a picture of how these resources are being used by the PMU community.

Using these statistics, the Library staff is able to determine the usefulness of a subscription to a particular online resource. This comparison allows the Library to make an informed decision in retaining current resources, and selecting future subscriptions. With new statistics every year, the process of analyzing the usage of online databases at the Library is a continuous task.

Quick Tip – Searching for a title using the OPAC?

Finding a book in the library catalog is as easy as one-two-three, even if you don't know the exact author or title.

1. Access the library's online catalog using the OPAC (Online Public Access Catalog) button on the main page of the library's website <http://lrc.pmu.edu.sa/library.asp>.
  2. When you enter your search, include as many words of the title that you are sure of and any author information that you know. Don't worry about the order of the words, or getting the title exactly right.

3. The search results page will display all of the books with the information that you provided. Click on the title you are looking for and more detailed information will be displayed, including publication date, subject words and number of pages. The details will also show you which libraries (male/female) have a copy and whether copies are IN, or checked OUT.
4. If the book is checked out, you can place a request online (Ask a Librarian). If the library doesn't have the book we can try to obtain it through the ILL (Inter Library Loan) service which connects the PMU Library to other libraries throughout the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and abroad.

Tokyo International Book Fair (TIBF)

The Saudi pavilion included an area of 400 squares meters and consisted of the Saudi Arabia Book Fair, the Department of Fine Arts Arabic calligraphy and culture test, children's library, a small theater for cultural competitions, and modern replicas of the Holy Mosque in Makkah and the Prophet's Mosque in Madinah.

Library Digitizes Greek Manuscripts

The British Library has digitized over one quarter of its Greek manuscripts (284 volumes) for the first time and made them freely available online at www.bl.uk/manuscripts

The website provides researchers with access to high quality digital images of a major part of the British Library's Greek manuscript collection, supported by enhanced metadata which enables users to search using keywords.

The British Library holds over 1,000 Greek manuscripts, over 3,000 Greek papyri and a comprehensive collection of early Greek printing. These collections make the library one of the largest and most important centers outside Greece for the study of over 2,000 years of Hellenic culture. The Greek manuscripts contain unique and outstandingly rich information for researchers working on the literature, history, science, religion, philosophy and art of the whole of the Eastern Mediterranean in the Classical and Byzantine periods.

The digitized Greek manuscript collection has many benefits, making the full-text of these rare documents freely available to everyone. This is important because not every scholar can afford to travel to the Britain to study these documents.

A batch of about 250 additional documents is scheduled to be published online in 2012.
