User Guide

GENERAL GUIDELINES

In Text Citations

1. If there is no author, use a few words of the title, or the whole title if it is short, in place of an author name. For example: use (Merriam, 1993) for a book entitled Merriam-Webster's collegiate dictionary that was published in 1993. Use double quotation marks around the title of an article, chapter or website and italicize the title of a book, brochure or report.
2. If there is no publication date, cite the author's last name followed by a comma and "n.d." For example: (Smith, n.d.)
3. When quoting, always cite the author, year, and page number(s). For example: "The 'placebo effect' disappeared when behaviors were studied in this manner" (Miele, 1993, p. 276).
4. Within a paragraph, the year in subsequent references is not needed. For example: Walker (2000) described the method... Walker also found...
5. For electronic sources that do not provide page numbers, use the paragraph number, if available, preceded by the abbreviation "para." For example: (Myers, 2000, para. 5)

Reference List

1. Double-space entries.
2. Put first line of citation at left margin and indent other lines.
3. Author
 - * Include author's last name and initials of author's first and middle names.
 - * Alphabetize by author's or editor's last name or by first significant word in title (if there is no author or editor or if there is a group author).
4. Date - Place parentheses around publication year. If there is no date, put n.d. in parentheses.
5. Title - Capitalize only first word of title and subtitle and all proper nouns.
6. Publication information
 - * Provide location of publisher. Exception: location of publisher not needed for journals newsletter, and magazines.
 - * Provide name of publisher in as brief form as possible. For example: use Eerdmans for William B. Eerdmans Publishers.
7. Electronic Resources
 - * APA no longer requires a retrieval date for most items.
 - * Preference for retrieval information is DOI (Digital Object Identifier).
 - * If there is no DOI, include the URL or name of database.
